

New brochure from LANXESS provides information on ion exchange resins:

Lewatit® Partner Project

Leverkusen – Lewatit® is one of the leading brands on the global market for ion exchange resins. LANXESS has just published a new 32-page brochure called "Partner Project", which describes in detail the products, technologies and services of the Ion Exchange Resins business unit. Enclosed with it is a "Product Scout", which is divided into fields of application and briefly summarizes each of the products available in the Lewatit® ion exchange range, thus enabling customers to quickly find the product most relevant to their needs.

The range of exchange resins, adsorbers and functional polymers is subdivided into the following three main application segments: water, foodstuffs and catalysis, biotechnology and chemical processes. The brochure offers application examples and services related to these segments.

In his foreword, Dr. Michael Zobel, head of the Ion Exchange Resins business unit, writes: "Lewatit® is an innovator and a key driver in the development of new and efficient high-performance ion exchange resins. These products have paved the way for completely new fields of applications by opening up new dimensions in terms of performance. Lewatit® comes wrapped in a convincing package: it is an all-embracing solution concept consisting of the product itself plus full technical support."

The brochure is available in German, English, French, Italian, Spanish, Chinese and Russian and can be ordered in electronic form by emailing lewatit@lanxess.com. The brochure can also be downloaded by visiting www.lewatit.com.
